A Note on Bank Reconciliation

Reconciling your business checking account each month allows you to keep your bank account, accounting, and taxes up-to-date. It is important to keep your records current in order to know how your business is doing. You really don't know unless all accounts are properly accounted for on your financial statement. This also helps you to manage your cash flow more effectively. By having all of your accounts in order you are able to determine your company's progress. Reconciling your account each month allows you to:

- Identify lost checks, lost deposits and unauthorized transactions.
- Detect and prevent excess/unjustified bank charges and ensures transactions are posted correctly by your bank.
- Detect and prevent embezzlement of funds from within your company.
- Sleep Better. You will sleep more peacefully at night knowing your bank accounts are reconciled, in balance and that all escrow funds, accounts, checks and disbursed funds are properly accounted for.

The BalanceLogic Insider more valuable. Please let us know what you expect from this newsletter each month by sending an email to info@balancelogic.com

The most important reason for reconciliation is to protect you and your business. By timely reconciling and promptly objecting to your bank about any unauthorized, fraudulent, or forged checks presented; you can relieve your agency of responsibility for the shortfall, and transfer the risk to the bank. This reason to reconcile alone should be enough. Protecting yourself and your business should never make you feel uncomfortable.

For more information on how to properly reconcile your bank and credit card accounts, contact us at 301-396-8455.
